

An amoxicillin clavulanic acid that makes it easy for the practice and the patient?
Take a look at Noroclav[®] tablets.

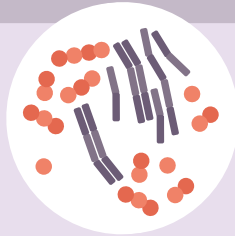

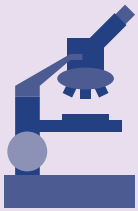

EMA Category C

Noroclav[®] tablets contain amoxicillin and clavulanic acid in a range of strengths for dogs and cats.

For the treatment of:

- Skin infections (including superficial and deep pyodermas) caused by susceptible Staphylococci
- Urinary tract infection caused by susceptible Staphylococci or E. Coli
- Respiratory infections caused by susceptible Staphylococci
- Enteritis caused by susceptible E.coli

Reducing the risk of antimicrobial resistance

EMA Category C (Caution) should be considered only when there are no antibiotics in Category D that could be clinically effective. For some veterinary indications, there are no alternatives belonging to Category D.

EMA Category C

Treatment

- ✓ Administration is via the oral route at a rate of 12.5mg/kg twice daily in all species.
- ✓ The tablets are scored and are easy to break in half for more accurate administration (following the guide below).
- ✓ Noroclav tablets are beef flavoured and may be crushed and added to a little food.

Duration of treatment

Acute cases: 5 to 7 days of treatment. Diagnosis should be re-assessed if no improvement is observed after this time.

Chronic or refractory cases: A longer course may be required where there is considerable tissue damage requiring time to repair. Diagnosis should be re-assessed if no improvement is observed after two weeks.
